In a search for novel antibacterial peptides in the hemolymph of Apis mellifera, two novel antibacterial peptides were isolated and purified. The amino acid sequences of the two peptides (pea aphid antibacterial peptides, PABPs 1 and 2) were determined. PABPs 1 and 2 exhibited antibacterial activity against Escherichia coli and Staphylococcus aureus. These peptides showed low antimicrobial activity against Gram-positive bacteria. The bactericidal activity of PABPs 1 and 2 against Gram-positive bacteria was inhibited by the addition of trypsin. Q: How to find the best fitting 3D surface to some data? Let's say I have this data: `mydata = Table[{i, {Sin[i], Sin[i]^2}, Sin[i]^3}, {i, 0, 10,.1}]`; How to find the best fitting surface to this data by using scipy? I have done this: `from scipy import optimize import numpy as np mydata2 = np.array(mydata) myfit2 = optimize.curve_fit(function=lambda x: [x[0], x[1], x[2]], xdata=mydata2, ydata=mydata2, method='ft')` But the curve looks a bit ugly, is there any way to do better? This is what I expect: and this is what I got: A: In matlab you can do the following: `mydata2 = [0.000100 0.000100 0.000100 0.500000 0.010000 0.000100 0.000100 0.010000`
